ANNOTATION

This article discusses the various information flows that have emerged as a result of modern scientific and technological advancements, as well as their responsibilities, drawbacks, effects on young people's ideological awareness, and degree of "addiction" to the Internet.

Keywords: Internet flow, "Odnoklassniki.ru", "Facebook", "V.kontakte", "Moymir", Internet traffic, globalization, social network.

Today, it is necessary to acquaint young people with scientific and technical achievements, but taking into account the negative consequences, it is desirable to inculcate in their minds constant control and explanatory work. In order to create a healthy immunity in young people, it is necessary to teach the positive aspects of using the flow of information, as well as mention the negative consequences. In some cases, the acceleration of the process of virtualization can lead to poor social relations in a teenager. "Social networks have a negative effect on the education of young people" Today, social networks on the Internet are becoming popular, especially among young people. Most of the Internet users in our country have their positions in such networks as "Odnoklassniki.ru", "Facebook", "V.kontakte", "Moymir". However, it is not a secret to anyone that in recent years these networks have had a negative impact on the education of young people. The purpose of the survey was to learn the opinions of our students on this issue. During one week, more than 110 participants participated in the discussion "What place do social networks on the Internet have in the lives of young people?" expressed their attitudes to the questionnaire. It is interesting that 32% of students approved the idea that these networks are necessary for making friends and making interesting acquaintances, while the same number of users admitted that the networks have a negative effect on the education and morals of young people. So, no matter how popular social networks are today, the number of people who can see their negative consequences is increasing.

A person can present himself in the world of the Internet in the way he wants, in the position he wants. From this point of view, a person began to work in the Internet world, that is, in virtual reality, based on the idea that "everything is up to me." Everything we do is regulated by the constitution and laws, but we see that the laws of the virtual world sometimes act contrary to the laws of the real world. The first imitation of events in virtual reality appears in a person. But we know from the human psyche that he always sees the "minus" side quickly and absorbs it quickly.

Let us remind you that in the 16th issue of "Darakchi" newspaper, journalist Gulnoza Alimova wrote "Are social networks a virtual drug or a new stage of mass culture?" an article called In this article, the author makes a broad observation about the role of social networks in the lives of young people today. Don't miss it. Social networks and society In the current process of globalization and at a time when global changes are taking place in the world, we cannot ignore social networks, which are one of the great inventions of information technology, which have an impact on the life of not only a specific person, but also the entire society. We can't pass. Currently, social networks cover almost the whole world. Especially the young generation loves social networks very much. Who doesn't like to post their pictures on the Internet, talk to friends and relatives at a distance, play games, listen to music and keep up with the latest news, constantly changing statuses? If we focus on the number of social networks and their types, this article will not be able to cover them all.

Let's take a look at the most popular social networks and how many users they have: Facebook - 750 million, Twitter - 200 million, Qzone - 480 million, Vkontakte - 135 million, etc. As you can see, these numbers show how much people are entering social networks. Naturally, you may have a question: is this good or vice versa? Of course, many people approve of these networks and rate them positively. Because now social networks are the best means of spending free time. Now, let's think about how social networks affect our life, worldview, mind, intellect and health.

With the forced development of the Internet, people are increasingly forgetting the norm and being drawn into its vortex. After all, we should not forget one important thing: real life is different, virtual life is different. Nowadays, many young people spend their time on social networks. They even forget their lessons, homework, and their plans. And this is nothing but addiction to social networks. In other words, it is psychological addiction. As you travel through the Internet, sooner or later you will see the statuses of some such as "Online", "V seti", "Gotov obshcheyeniyu". These people basically "live" in social networks. For them, the problems and concerns of virtual life take precedence over everything else, including real life. In our opinion, this trend may have negative consequences. Because when a person is in social networks, he sees his life only through these networks, draws conclusions from the point of view of the network and from the thoughts of its members, his worldview is formed within this network, so the mind of such people lives in only one world. People tend to cover up their real-life shortcomings, frustrations, and failures online. As a result of this, the ideology of the youth will be damaged.

It should not be forgotten that Youth is our future. Let's not be indifferent to our fate!
